THE AMERICAN MISSIONARY

VOL. LXVII. NO. 2. | FEBRUARY, 1913 | NEW SERIES VOL. 4. No. 11

TO LIFE MEMBERS

At the time "The American Missionary" became the organ of the six homeland societies, four years ago, it was decided that it would not be feasible to send the magazine free to life members of any of these societies who became such following that date. It will be readily understood that in the partnership relation at that time established, no society could properly ask the others to share the expense of sending the magazine to life members on its roll. In deference to past custom, however, an arrangement was effected by which the magazine continued to be sent to those already on the life membership list of the participating societies. If, therefore, any who became life members prior to 1909 have not received the magazine, it is due either to a clerical error or to the fact that they have not signed and returned the card requesting the magazine, which, under the rules of the post-office department, has been sent them. Please let us know if you are entitled to the magazine and are not receiving it, and the mistake will be promptly corrected.

A GOING CONCERN

The Societies which publish the magazine are members of a great fraternity of organizations doing various types of home mission work. It is estimated that about 25,000 people are under commission of these organizations each year. Some are pastors, some teachers, some Bible visitors, and some secretaries, superintendents, general missionaries, etc. It is plain that the task of recruiting this great force and organizing and developing it for highest efficiency is one of distinct difficulty. A chief obstacle in the way of achieving such efficiency has been the divided state of Protestantism, as a result of which home mission societies have too largely carried on their work in an unrelated way. Within a few years, the Home Missions Council has been organized and is rapidly becoming a unifying agency. At its recent meeting in New York, in which representatives of something over a score of organizations participated, the entire field of home missions was canvassed, and plans laid for co-operative action through the coming year. Thus the home mission organizations are endeavoring to lead forward in the work of co-ordinating the activities of the church of Christ.

THE CONGREGATIONAL HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Office: 287 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Hubert C. Herring, D.D., General Secretary; Rev. Herman F. Swartz, Associate Secretary; Willis E. Lougee, Treasurer; Miss Miriam L. Woodberry, Secretary Woman's Department.

In the office of the Home Missionary Society special interest has been felt in the Balkan War on account of the fact that its Ellis Island missionary, Rev. P. D. Vassileff, is a Bulgarian. He learns from acquaintances in that country that there is much suffering among the families of soldiers, especially those who have been killed or wounded. If any of our readers are willing to help these destitute families across the sea, they may send their gifts to the Lawyers' Title Insurance & Trust Company, 160 Broadway, New York City, designated for the "Balkan Relief Fund."

Dr. Clarence F. Swift, of Central Church, Fall River, Massachusetts, recently took his Sunday morning congregation on a tour among a series of home mission fields selected as special objects to be supported by their gifts. The trip carried them into five states, and made them acquainted with a half dozen missionaries, as well as with an anonymous pensioner of the Ministerial Relief Fund seventy-seven years old, with fifty years of ministerial service behind him. We are confident that there are large possibilities in this plan, and will be glad to co-operate with any pastors who desire to try it.

At the quadrennial meeting of the Federal Council at Chicago, in December, Rev. E. B. Sanford, D. D., so long the leader of the federation movement, was made Honorary Secretary. Dr. Sanford has not been in his usual health of late, and does not feel that he can continue to carry a burden of stated duties. He will, however, be still on the Council's staff, and available in many matters as to which his long experience will enable him to render peculiar service.

Dr. Sanford's connection with movements for church federation dates back almost to the beginning of his ministerial life. Now upon one line and now upon another, he has steadily pressed for that which nearly the whole church at last perceives to be a prime obligation and necessity.

Rev. George R. Merrill, D.D, who for many years has been Superintendent of Home Missions for Minnesota, has resigned and accepted a position in the editorial department of the International Sunday-School Association. Dr. Merrill's administration of home mission affairs in Minnesota has covered a period of rapid development in all the lines of the life of that commonwealth. Three years ago the state home missionary society became self-supporting. The winning personality, ripe scholarship, and wide interest in the affairs of the kingdom of God, which have given Dr. Merrill so large a place in our denominational life, will be greatly missed by our Minnesota fellowship, and in some degree by the churches at large should his future work lie entirely in the interdenominational field.

Rev. Peter Roberts, of the International Y. M. C. A., estimates that forty per cent. of the immigrant steamship tickets to the United States now being sold in Europe on the installment plan read via the Panama Canal. This means that the hopes and fears of the Pacific Coast concerning a great increase of foreign population are likely to be realized. Whatever else may be the outcome, this movement will result in securing a better distribution of the immigrant population. It may easily come to pass that Washington, Oregon, and California shall have a population more than fifty per cent. foreign, as is already the case with North and South Dakota and Montana.

About a year ago there was organized in Bonebrake Seminary, of the United Brethren Church, a volunteer band for home missions. Since that time the movement has grown in numbers and significance. The band now has a membership of nineteen. A motto was selected from the pen of Francis E. Clark, founder of the Christian Endeavor movement and world-famed. It reads as follows:

"The more I see of America and the world, the more convinced I am that the home missionary holds the key to the situation."

The motto is artistically designed, with the national flag in the background and the Cross and Bible in the lower left-hand corner.

WHAT NEW BRITAIN IS DOING TO HELP THE IMMIGRANT

By Mrs. Benjamin W. Labaree, New Britain, Conn.

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—The superintendent of the New Britain City Mission, who furnishes us with this striking account of work for immigrants, is a daughter of Dr. H. A. Schauffler, who founded the Slavic Department of our Society and whose lamented death was so great a loss to its work. With her husband, Rev. Benjamin W. Labaree, she labored some years as a missionary in Persia, until he fell a victim to the murderous hate of assassins. Returning to America to educate her children, she is still giving herself in effort and prayer to those whose need is greatest. A large part of this article recently appeared in the Missionary Review of the World, to which publication, as well as to Mrs. Labaree, our debt is acknowledged.]

WHAT is New Britain doing to help the immigrant? How is she facing her problem of assimilating into useful American citizenship the forty thousand foreign-born, or children of the foreign-born, in her population of fifty thousand people?

In a brief article like this there is not time to enter into detail concerning the excellent public school system, the state trade schools for boys and girls, the city hospital, and the painstaking work done by the Board of Public Charities and the Playground Commission; though it should be mentioned in passing how closely and increasingly these departments co-operate with other agencies that serve the foreign population. Other organizations which are constantly assisting our immigrant population are the Charity Organization, the Visiting Nurses' Association, the Day Nursery, The Young Men's Christian Association, the Young Women's Christian Association, the Young Men's Temperance and Benevolent Society, the Boys' Club, the Working Girls' Club, the Tuberculosis Relief Society, and the City Mission.

In 1911, at the suggestion of the Charity Organization, all the churches and the benevolent, civic, and religious societies were invited to appoint delegates, who met and organized a Central Advisory Council. Twenty-nine organizations are at present represented in the Council, which has undertaken the study of Child Welfare in New Britain, and after adopting recommendations, which are referred back to the various organizations for approval, is prepared to push needed reforms with all the strength of the most representative body of men and women in the city. Plans are well under way for holding a Child Welfare Exhibit in the spring of 1913.

In the way of definite church work, there are the following foreign churches in New Britain:

3 German Protestant.
1 German Roman Catholic (with French services).
3 Swedish Protestant.
2 English Roman Catholic (1 has Italian services).
1 English Lutheran.
1 Russian Orthodox.
1 Ruthenian Greek Catholic.
1 Lithuanian Roman Catholic.
1 Polish Roman Catholic.

It is a common experience in the churches where only foreign languages are used that the young people grow to prefer English to the mother tongue and drift off in large numbers to swell the crowd of the unchurched or to enter some church that will give them interests and activities in the language which they prefer and in the use of which they feel at home.

The organization whose work is perhaps the most distinctively planned to help all portions of the immigrant population of New Britain, through the churches, is the City Mission.

This was reorganized some fourteen years ago from a rescue mission, and with the great changes which have taken place in the city during these fourteen years, the City Mission has changed and enlarged in methods and policy. Its newly revised constitution shows that one of the principal objects of the City Mission is "to assist the co-operating churches to establish and conduct city mission work in various languages and by suitable methods." There are eleven Protestant churches—American, Swedish, and German—represented by pastors and laymen on the City Mission Board.

It was in 1909 that the City Mission adopted as its working theory the following: The City Mission work is to be done through the churches, and just as far as possible in the churches already established. We have no separate City Mission building or hall where we tell our foreign citizens that they may gather for services, but different churches open their doors to different sets of foreigners, where as far as possible they are ministered to in their own language, and as quickly as they can understand English the effort is made to draw them into the Sunday-school and the English services.

Some of this work for distinct nationalities has been going on in the two larger Congregational churches of the city for a number of years, and is not in any sense under the direction of the City Mission, though in close co-operation with it. The services of the superintendent and her assistants are available at any time for the work of these churches, as well as for the churches where their help is still needed in starting and carrying on the work. The aim is to place, as rapidly as possible and profitable, different lines of work in the different churches, and to direct such work only so long as is necessary, until the church can take entire control of it. The City Mission is a sort of clearing house, responsible to see that no overlapping or waste of effort takes place and that all gaps are filled as speedily as may be compatible with the best interests of the work.

A few illustrations may be in place, showing the practical results of this method of work.

The South Congregational Church has for many years conducted a Chinese Sunday-school, and the consecrated woman who is in charge sees to it that no Chinaman comes into the city without being visited and invited into this school.

The same church organized some years ago a Persian-Assyrian Brotherhood, whose meetings and Sunday-school class were under the charge of two men of the church, and were for some time conducted through interpreters, who were members of the Brotherhood. When the present superintendent of the City Mission began her work in New Britain in 1909, the two hundred and fifty Persian-Assyrians claimed her as their special friend, as they had all come from the mission station in Persia where she had spent many years, and she frequently addressed them in their own language. Early in 1911, the South Church and the Persian-Assyrian Brotherhood, aided financially by the Connecticut Home Missionary Society, called a pastor of their own race who had just immigrated to America—a man of ability and consecration who had been trained in Persia and was in the active pastorate there. He is doing splendid work for the Persian-Assyrians of New Britain, Bristol, and Hartford, and is directly responsible to the pastor and committee of the South Church.

This church conducts also in its house of worship a mission for the Italians, the Connecticut Home Missionary Society paying the salary of the Italian missionary.

The First Congregational Church has for several years given a church home to Armenians, and at first an Armenian student from Hartford Theological Seminary preached for them once a week and visited in a few of the homes. This work has grown very much in the past three years, and now an experienced ex-missionary from Turkey works and visits among the Armenians of the city, conducts a Sunday-school class for men, a mothers' meeting, and various other classes and gatherings, while weekly Armenian preaching services are held. Those who understand English are being drawn more and more into English Sunday-school classes and into church fellowship. This same missionary suddenly found it possible to open up work for the Greeks of the city, and also uses her knowledge of French among those whose mother tongue it is.

THE PERSIAN-ASSYRIAN BROTHERHOOD OF NEW BRITAIN

Three years ago the pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church asked the superintendent to find some form of work for his church, which had never attempted anything of the kind. After a careful study of a certain section of the city, the proposition was made that the ladies of the Methodist Episcopal Church conduct a sewing-school under the leadership of the trained missionary. This was taken up by the home missionary society of the church and was financially backed by the standing committee. Last spring closed the third season of a most successful sewing-school in which children of seventeen nationalities, with an average attendance of eighty each week, are taught not only sewing, but bed-making, how to mind the baby, and many songs and hymns and Scripture verses. Various mothers' parties in connection with the school bring in the mothers of these children, and a picnic for the children and mothers and babies ends the season.

The success of this school and the clamorous requests of children in another part of the city, led to the formation of another sewing-school, which is taught by young ladies from Congregational, Baptist, and Episcopal churches. This school has been so popular that sixty-one children at a time have had to be turned away for lack of room and teaching force.

These illustrations will serve to show the methods and working value of the plan of City Mission work as conducted in New Britain. Two or three more facts should be added. Instead of furnishing work or giving much relief, except by request of donors at Thanksgiving and Christmas and in special cases, the City Mission takes great pains to connect those who need assistance with the various agencies which now exist in the city for relief of one kind and another, such as the Charity Organization and the other agencies mentioned earlier in this article. The missionaries are constantly called upon to help these organizations and the hospital in the matter of translation for foreigners who do not understand English. The superintendent and her two assistants can use nine languages, and the three missionaries connected with the First and South churches can use six more, these fifteen languages being about half of those spoken in this cosmopolitan city. The frequently expressed aim of the City Mission Board is to gradually increase its staff so that all the inhabitants of New Britain who need their aid can be reached in their own languages.

Inevitably the question arises: What are the results of these efforts and of this expenditure of time, strength, and money? Visible results are hardest to trace in work whose object is not only physical and moral, but ever and always spiritual as well. Changed lives and improved living conditions go hand in hand, and for both of these objects many Christians in New Britain are working. The city clerk reports that results of the efforts to instruct mothers in the care of their children by the visiting nurses and missionaries, coupled with the work of the chairman of the Board of Health, are already shown in a lower summer death rate among infants.

There are from ninety to one hundred families of a certain nationality in New Britain. A year ago there were only from twelve to twenty of their homes which could be considered thoroughly clean. To-day there are only six of their homes which could be considered thoroughly dirty! One and another home was cleaned up for the expected visit of the missionary, and the housemother became so proud of the way her home looked that she joined in the campaign to make her neighbors do likewise, and thus the good work spread. Seventy newly clean homes! Who can measure the effect? A pastor was questioned as to what he considered the results of this systematic effort to help the immigrants in New Britain. He unhesitatingly replied, "We cannot measure the effects on the immigrants, but the results in the churches have been tremendous." The education and enlightenment of the churches, the personal work done by church members, the new attitude of individuals and churches towards work for foreigners, the deep interest in studying the various nationalities and their history and characteristics, and the method of approach to each—all these must be reckoned as a part of the results of City Mission work in New Britain.

SHORT MESSAGES TO HOME MISSIONARIES

By the General Secretary

Number 34.

DEAR BRETHREN:

Continuing the subject of church publicity, or, as I like better to call it, "how to make a church bulk large in the community," I am writing this month on the subject of the church building. This, of course, is one of the minor external things which, as I said in former messages, are worth considering if one does not overestimate their significance. I have an idea that we ordinarily underestimate the effect produced on the public mind by the character of a church building and its accessories. As a matter of fact, the church building is by all odds the most important piece of external advertising which a church can have. It ought therefore to be given far more thought, and more discerning thought, than is usually bestowed upon it. The first element in the case is the site. It is a piece of folly almost equal to an impiety to put a church building on a lot which is hidden from view or is down in a hole or next to a barn or on a noisy corner, or otherwise grossly unsuitable. It pays to give any amount of time and pains, and any securable amount of money, in order to put a church in just the right location. A difference of a few hundred dollars in a small town, or a few thousand in a large one, is of no consequence whatever when put over against the loss involved in choosing a poor site.

As to the building itself, its size is the first thing to be considered in this connection. A diminutive building is, so far as its influence extends, a handicap. Irrespective of its beauty, it gives an impression of pettiness and poverty which is hard to overcome. Of course, if it is too large in proportion to the size of the town or the needs of the congregation, it becomes a handicap. But in my opinion the other mistake is more often made among our Congregational churches. We are over-cautious. We do not lay out generous plans, and rely upon the community to appreciate what we are doing and help us put them through. I do not believe in recklessness, but I do believe in a holy boldness in the matter of securing dignified and substantial church buildings.

I have not spoken especially of the matter of graceful architecture. It goes without saying that beauty in a church building is greatly to be desired. Tastes, however, differ so widely, and the appreciation of good architecture on the part of large numbers of people is so rudimentary, that I am not particularly clear how large a part the beauty of a church building has to do with making known the work for which it stands. Irrespective of this, however, I would be willing to undergo any reasonable amount of agony to escape adding another to the extraordinary aggregation of freaks found in the eclectic and composite ecclesiastical structures of our country.

Almost equally important is the matter of keeping the church and the grounds in thoroughly good condition. Weather-beaten paint, rotten sidewalks, a ragged lawn, and rickety steps attract attention, but not precisely of the kind desired. The condition of the church property is usually a pretty fair index of the condition of the church's life. If a congregation does not care enough about its house of worship to keep it in repair, the presumption is that there is not much interest in what the building symbolizes. And the community, without realizing it, draws just that conclusion. No one should be so alert about this matter as the pastor. He sees more of the church, and thinks more about it, than any one else. If he does not bestir himself to keep the property up, probably no one else will. He cannot, of course, in every case secure promptly all he desires, but he can keep up a steady and gentle pressure for a church property, clean, tidy, and in good repair. It is an excellent advertising asset.

There are certain special features of a church building which have in them large potential publicity value. For instance, there is the tablet giving the name of the church and its services. Sometimes it is of such a sort as irresistibly to suggest a self-respecting, dignified, active, and discriminating organization. In other cases, it is so shabby, or so small, or so staring, or so cheap looking as to repel rather than attract. I believe thoroughly in making much of this tablet. If the church is on a corner, let it appear in duplicate on each side, so that no one who passes the church can possibly fail to see it. As to the value of a supplementary sign, changed each week, giving topics of sermons, etc., I am not so clear. It easily degenerates into a sort of competitive appeal as between the different churches of the neighborhood. If used at all, its form and contents should be carefully planned. It seems to me that an electric sign giving the name of the church may be very useful if it is tasteful and rightly placed. Despite the multiplicity and extravagant variety of illuminated signs, there is undeniably an impression made by them. In certain communities, it is profitable to add the word "Welcome" or something of that sort. I am, however, a little hesitant on this point. The church which says "Welcome" outside and freezes you when you get inside would have done better to say nothing at all.

I believe in a church bell. I would stipulate, however, most earnestly and belligerently, that it be ample in size, of the finest metal, of a low pitch, and that it be rung with moderation and discrimination. I suppose that it must be confessed that this stipulation will very sharply limit the number of bells. Considerations of expense, if nothing else, will bar most churches from installing such a bell. It is better to go without than to put in a bell which suggests either that the cows are coming home or that a fire has broken out somewhere. But wherever the right sort of a bell, discreetly rung, is in use, I believe it is a means of sanctified publicity. Much more is it true that a good chime of bells helps to make the community conscious of the church's existence and message.

I have said nothing of the interior of the church. It has an undoubted and very considerable bearing upon the matter under discussion. Though only a fraction of the community may habitually attend a given church, a very large portion of them find their way, on one occasion or another, through its doors. If, when there, they can see and hear and breathe air not utilized at a previous service, and have a comfortable seat to sit in, and carry away a sense of harmony of color and comeliness of form, they may not be more impressed than by a church where the converse of these things is found, but their impression will surely be of a very different type.

I am not forgetting that you are obliged, as a rule, to minister in churches which others have planned. But I earnestly hope that whenever the congregation you are serving builds a new church, you will throw yourself whole-heartedly into the endeavor to make it speak effectively for the cause you represent. I hope, too, that you will find ways to make the structures which you inherit from others serviceable in the largest degree to the same end. There is nothing artificial or illegitimate in such an effort. It is simply an endeavor to utilize every agency in our work as fishers of men.

Fraternally yours,
HUBERT C. HERRING.

THE CHURCH AS A SOCIAL AGENCY

By Rev. Charles Stelzle, New York City

IT has become quite a common thing among social workers and sociological professors to ridicule the Church because of its alleged inefficiency in matters having to do with the social problem in any of its aspects. Much of this criticism is no doubt justifiable, for the Church, like any other institution, is just beginning to grasp the fundamental principles which must be at the bottom of all sociological research and recommendation. In these discussions it is often forgotten that we have not yet mastered even the elements of the problem of society. Theories have been formed from the examination of groups of isolated facts; but life is complex. It is unfair to rush to final conclusions. Until the last item has been presented we cannot afford to be dogmatic. There are so many factors to be considered that no man has either the wisdom or the ability to pose as an infallible teacher of sociology. Therefore the time has not yet come for any self-appointed body of social workers to despise what the Church has done in history, nor yet what the Church is doing to-day in matters of social reform.

A constructive criticism is always in order, and should be welcomed by every honest churchman, but the criticism that one hears in the average class in sociology is usually based upon narrow prejudice—which, however, is mistakenly termed "a liberal attitude"—toward all religious forces, programs, and doctrines. If the same scientific and impartial study that is advocated with reference to other forces in society were applied to the church there would be no cause for complaint, but ordinarily the professor will condone the greatest moral and mental obliquity in men and movements outside the church, while he will absolutely ignore the fine spirit which has animated the church and its adherents from the beginning of its history.

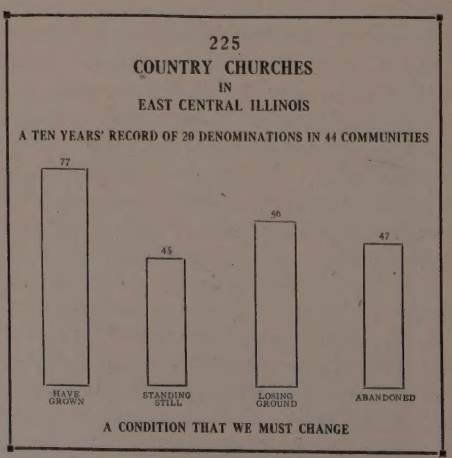
What is the church doing in the matter of social reform? Certain reformers scorn its claims that it is rendering real service in this connection. It is true that the church is not a social reform agency in the sense that it makes this its chief function, but even a cursory study of the situation must convince the open-minded student that the church is an important factor in social service. It gives to every man the right to accept whatever economic theory he desires so long as its application does no violence to the rights of others and so long as it is in accord with fundamental moral principles. But the church has a positive position and work in this matter. It has undertaken important studies of social conditions throughout the country which easily match the efforts of professional social workers.

Several of the national home boards of the churches in the United States have long had "bureaus of social service" or "departments of church and labor," and they have been grappling with social problems in the city and in the country, employing experts for the purpose of making sociological surveys and suggesting the most up-to-date methods for meeting the needs discovered. There are in the employ of these boards men who are regarded as authorities on these subjects, and who are consulted by the leaders in social work outside the church. The evolution in the thinking of man with regard to the function of the church concerning modern social problems has not caught these home mission agencies napping.

The church has come out in pronouncements upon certain economic conditions which might well have been set forth by the workers themselves. They could not have been more emphatic and concrete. But perhaps the chief function of the church in these matters is that of supplying the men and the women who are the leaders in social reform affairs. The study of over a thousand professional social workers as to church affiliation shows that of those who were associated charity workers, 92 per cent. were members of the church, and of general social workers, 71 per cent. were church members.

As a matter of fact, the church practically controls through its membership nearly every great philanthropic movement of any consequence. Glance at the list of directors and verify this statement. Practically all of the money that goes to the hospitals, orphan asylums, clubs, and charitable institutions of various kinds, comes from church people. Without them these could not exist. Recognizing that there is a great work to be done in the matter of social reform which must reach down to fundamental things, let it not be forgotten that the wounded in life's battle must meanwhile be cared for. To these the church ministers freely. At the same time it is developing most of those who will fight for the bigger things in social reform.



THE FIRST PRAYER AND SERMON IN DAKOTA.

The first recorded act of worship on Dakota soil was a prayer by the famous frontiersman and explorer, Jed Smith, then a boy of eighteen, on the deck of the "Yellowstone," on the Missouri River, directly west of Aberdeen, on the morning of June 2, 1823. The vessel was in command of William H. Ashley, who was en route to Yellowstone with a company of young traders, trappers, and frontiersmen. They were attacked by the Ree Indians at the mouth of the Grand River, and thirteen of their number were shot down. General Ashley called for a volunteer to carry the news of the disaster to his partner, Major Andrew Henry, then trading on the Yellowstone. Young Jed Smith volunteered, and, kneeling amid the dead and dying, forgot all theories of prayer, and offered a soulful petition that moved his companions to tears and strengthened him for his hazardous journey.

The first sermon was by Stephen R. Riggs, who drove from Minnesota in 1840, and preached a sermon at Fort Pierre. "Father" DeSmet came as a missionary to the Indians in 1849.—The American Home Missionary.

An analysis of the above report shows that the receipts in December were more encouraging than for some months past. Urgent letters sent out from the office to churches and individuals were largely responsible for the increase.

It will be remembered that in the November AMERICAN MISSIONARY we asked for some large individual gifts. We received one such gift—$1,200—which paid for a year the portion of the salaries assumed by our Society of three missionaries in the Northwest. We hope there are others who will be moved to take some of these salaries and thus have a personal representative upon the home field.

January is the month in which Home Missions and its needs are to be considered in Sunday-schools and Christian Endeavor Societies. It is hoped that the gifts for this work will be generous and that they may be received as soon as possible after February 1. Superintendents and Presidents should bear in mind that every scholar in the Sunday-school and every member of the Christian Endeavor Society who contributes twenty-five cents or more, is entitled to receive from the office a set of six postcards made from our own negatives, illustrating work on the Frontier. In order to secure these cards, it will be necessary that the name and address, with the money, be sent to the Treasurer.

WOMAN'S DEPARTMENT

Conducted by Miss Miriam L. Woodberry

OUR LATEST AMERICANS

By Miss Anna Gavlik, Duquesne, Pa.

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—The writer of this article is the daughter of Rev. Andrew Gavlik, pastor of our Slovak church at Duquesne, Pa., and is a recent graduate of the Schauffler Training School. The article was prepared as an address for the meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Federation at Buffalo last October, and we have left unchanged the allusions to the special circumstances under which it was given.]

THE subject assigned to me, as I see it on the program, is "Our Latest Americans." I am sure that you do not expect me to treat it with all that it means. I take it to refer in this case to the Slavonic people of America among whom, here and there, we have begun our missionary work. There is something very sweet about this word "Americanism" to us converted Slovaks. Its meaning to us is next to Christianity, and presents to our minds men and women who stand for that which is purest and best that we know of in the light of Christianity. And allow me to tell you there is nothing in God's world that can make such Americans as we understand the word "American" calls for, except the gospel of Jesus Christ. Americanism and Christianity go hand in hand to the converted Slovaks. Get a Slovak converted, and you have created an American indeed. You may be sure that his vote is secured for the best that he knows. And to show you that education alone, even in our public school, is not enough to make true Americans, let me illustrate by an incident that has taken place within the last year and a half or so. Miss Woodberry, and perhaps some others present, know Miss Mary Rovnak and what a beautiful Christian character she is. She is now at our Schauffler Missionary Training School, and we expect much from her life. But she was a Roman Catholic, as superstitious as most of them are, about three years ago. She and her oldest brother were raised in one house and attended the same public school, but what a difference between them now! She is free from superstition and anxious to live for what is best. He is in the power of superstition and in the hands of the priests, ready to do their bidding even if it be the destruction of America itself. And what is the reason for this difference? Simply that one is converted and enlightened by the gospel of Jesus Christ, and the other is not. We know by experience that only the gospel of Jesus Christ creates good Americans.

MISS ANNA GAVLIK

Now I am ready for my experiences.

Experiences

I began my work on the 17th of June last, at Braddock, Pennsylvania, which is known for its smoke and dirt. Braddock has a large percentage of foreign people of various nationalities, but our work is largely being done for the Slovaks alone, as this nationality is predominant there. Lately a good many Croatians have begun to attend our church, as Mr. Gluvna, our pastor, speaks that language too, and a few of them are already converted to Christ. These are anxious for the salvation of their countrymen, and try to bring some of them to our services, so we now have quite a number present every Sunday evening.

My work is visiting, playing the organ at different services, training young people to sing, and teaching a class in our Sunday-school. On Saturdays I have a sewing-school with children. We intend, in the near future, if possible, to organize a woman's society. My sewing-school is small, but every now and then I get outside children to come in. This is hard to do, however, as the parents are warned by their priests not to send their children to our church. The same thing is true of our Sunday-school. But in spite of the warning of the priests, we succeed here and there in persuading the people to send their children to our church.

In my visiting, there are homes in which I am gladly received, and homes in which I am not welcome. In some homes I have as many as five or six persons to speak to, and they reverently listen to the Gospel. It is a sad thing for me to see them—how ignorant they are of the true religion of Jesus Christ. They do not understand what it is to be saved. Their religion consists of nothing but formalism—going to church, going to confession, and paying their church dues. If left to themselves they would gladly be led to the true knowledge of Christ. But their priests are in their way. However, being in this country where the spirit of freedom is influencing all, they are opening their eyes, and here and there individuals are found who dare to think for themselves and are willing to accept the truth in spite of what their priests have to say to them. Such are the ones that are persuaded to come to our church. The light of knowledge is dawning upon our people, and the future promises more and more of such. These will have their spiritual shelter in our mission churches.

A Roman Catholic Lady Who Comes to Our Church

Since I began my work at Braddock I have come across a certain Roman Catholic woman, a young widow. I found the walls of her two rooms decorated with holy pictures, and soon found that she was a very religious woman. As I talked with her I discovered that she condemned the sinful enjoyments of the world, and that she was a praying woman, though superstitiously so. In spite of her many prayers addressed to different saints, she did not know anything whatever of the sweetness of a personal acquaintance with Jesus. I persuaded her to come to our church, and now she attends quite regularly in spite of what her neighbors are doing to discourage her from doing so. She says that never in her life had she heard such sweet songs and such beautiful promises as are found in the Bible. We are hoping that before very long she will be brought to the clear knowledge of Jesus Christ as her personal Savior.

A Woman Who Followed Me from House to House

At one time I entered a house and found a woman in it. I tried to speak with her about Jesus, but she soon found out that I was not a Roman Catholic, and told me that she did not care for my message. Seeing this, I tried to leave some literature with her before leaving her house, but she refused to take it. As I was entering the next house she was there too to warn her neighbor, who also told me she did not care for my talk. The woman followed me to quite a number of other houses and tried to warn the people from me with the statement that I was a Protestant, but many of the people did not care for her warning and took the Christian literature that I offered to them, and treated me kindly. This poor ignorant woman was so angry at me that I thought she was going to do me bodily harm, but she did not; the Lord took care of me so she did not dare to lay her hands on me. I entertain no hard feeling against her, for I know it was only her ignorance that prompted her to do as she did.

People Complain of Their Priests

Only a few days ago I visited a Roman Catholic family and had a nice talk with the lady of the house. She told me they must pay so much and so much to the church, that they must send their children to the parochial school and pay for the same when they could have free schooling for their children at the public school. When told that this is a free country in which everyone has the right to say himself where he is to send his children to school, she told me that if they did not send their children to the parochial school the priest would not allow them to go to confession, would not baptize their children, and would not bury their dead should one of the family die. From this instance, and from many others that we meet with, we see that a good many Roman Catholics would send their children to the public schools instead of the parochial, if they had their own way about it. I asked this woman to come to our church, but so far I have not had the pleasure of seeing her there. I know she would come if she were not afraid. What a tyranny and slavery to live so bound in the power of the priests! The time is gradually coming, however, when the people will have courage to do as they wish, and our missions are one of the agencies which will help them to that state of mind and heart.

Conclusion

Our work is hard, and the success is rather slow, but we believe the near future has better things in store for us. The people are getting tired of the oppression of their priests and are coming to see the emptiness of their formal religion, and as they are very religious people they will accept the truth. Our results, though small, yet justify us in taking courage in our work. Just lately a young man was converted, and in spite of the opposition that he has from his fellow-countrymen, he not only lives a clean Christian life himself but now and then brings others to our services. Let us look at the work in the spirit of our Lord. To Him one single soul is worth all the effort. And His cause cannot fail, for He is in it.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Nature, they say, doth dote,
And cannot make a man
Save on some worn-out plan,
Repeating us by rote:
For him her Old-World moulds aside she threw,
And, choosing sweet clay from the breast
Of the unexhausted West,
With stuff untainted shaped a hero new,
Wise, steadfast in the strength of God, and true.
How beautiful to see
Once more a shepherd of mankind indeed,
Who loved his charge, but never loved to lead;
One whose meek flock the people joyed to be,
Not lured by any cheat of birth,
But by his clear-grained human worth,
And brave old wisdom of sincerity!
They knew that outward grace is dust;
They could not choose but trust
In that sure-footed mind's unfaltering skill,
And supple-tempered will
That bent like perfect steel to spring again and thrust.
His was no lonely mountain-peak of mind,
Thrusting to thin air o'er our cloudy bars,
A sea-mark now, now lost in vapors blind;
Broad prairie rather, genial, level-lined,
Fruitful and friendly for all human kind,
Yet also nigh to heaven and loved of loftiest stars.
And can his fame abide,
Still patient in his simple faith sublime,
Till the wise years decide.
Great captains, with their guns and drums,
Disturb our judgment for the hour,
But at last silence comes;
These are all gone, and, standing like a tower,
Our children shall behold his fame,
The kindly-earnest, brave, foreseeing man,
Sagacious, patient, dreading praise, not blame,
New birth of our new soil, the first American.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

A MESSAGE AND AN OPPORTUNITY

By Secretary C. J. Ryder

TWO years ago a plan was entered into by representatives of all our benevolent societies assigning to each society a given month or period for the exploitation of the work of that society for an educational and inspirational message and for the collection of gifts by the Sunday-schools, Christian Endeavor Societies and young people's organizations. A leaflet has been prepared containing certain suggestions for the effective use of the Sundays of February for the help of superintendents and teachers.

February is allotted to the American Missionary Association.

This month was so assigned partly because it is the month for the Lincoln Memorial Anniversary which the Sunday-schools adopted nineteen years ago and have in increasing numbers maintained since. An especially attractive Lincoln Memorial Concert Exercise has been prepared by an expert in educational and missionary work among the Sunday-schools who writes with a fresh and interesting pen. January being the month assigned to the Home Missionary Society, the A. M. A. has sought to keep out of the field until that society had had its full opportunity for correspondence and circularization. The Lincoln Memorial Exercise this year involves tableau possibilities which may be worked out with valuable results in the Sunday-schools. Accompanying this Exercise there will also be furnished a leaflet of instructions to superintendents and teachers. In the use of these two pamphlets great interest may be awakened in the schools and Endeavor Societies and much information imparted. The Lincoln Memorial material and also that for the entire month of February will be furnished from the Central Office or from any one of the District Offices of the A. M. A.

The Jubilee Celebration of the Signing of the Emancipation Proclamation is of peculiar and thrilling interest. The study of this great event in our national history, the emancipation of four million bondmen by the stroke of the pen of Abraham Lincoln, should be most fruitful. Every department of the work of the American Missionary Association relates itself with the life and name of Abraham Lincoln. He was born in a mountain cabin and among these Highlanders where the A. M. A. has a large work; he emancipated the Negroes and among these who represent the Negro citizenship of our country the A. M. A. has its greater work; he took a Christian attitude toward the Indian problem and here again the A. M. A. is an important factor in the elevation and Christianization of the Indians. Alaska was purchased under the direction of the great War Secretary, and in Alaska are the missions of the A. M. A. In addition to these lines of work that associate themselves with the name of our martyred President, are added in these later years work for Oriental immigrants including Chinese, Japanese and Hindus on the Pacific Slope. Also out into the Island Territories of Porto Rico and Hawaii our Sunday-schools have pushed their work through the A. M. A.

Surely February should be a month of great interest and study along the lines of Christian Patriotism as represented in the vast field committed by the churches to the American Missionary Association. Scarcely a single great national problem is up for consideration and study that does not embed itself in the field and work of this Association.

This Message of February brings to every member of our Sunday-schools, Endeavor Societies and young people's organizations a great opportunity. This is the opportunity for the study of these problems of Christian Patriotism. It also presents the opportunity for gifts of all these loyal young people of our fellowship to this great work. It is the annual collection of the young people for these important branches of educational missionary activity. Every Sunday of the month, the Sunday-school should put aside a collection for the work among these needy millions of our own country on continent and islands represented in the field of the A. M. A.

Here is for a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together by the young people of our fellowship to send to the treasury of the American Missionary Association the largest gift ever bestowed by them especially for the young people of less favored regions in our own land who are reached by the A. M. A.

Remember then the Jubilee Anniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation which you celebrate during February of this year!

FIFTY YEARS AT SCHOOL

By Rev. Charles M. Melden, D.D., in the Methodist Review

JOHN C. CALHOUN is reported to have said that if he could find a single Negro who understood Greek syntax he would regard the race as human and worthy to be treated as such. As this was considered both impossible and absurd, he defended the South in its treatment of the slave as less than human. This is no place to discuss the institution of Negro slavery, but a glance at it may help us better to understand and estimate the intellectual progress of the race, for, in measuring the attainments and prospects of the Negro, we must consider the depths from which he has come rather than the heights which he has reached.

Slavery was justified upon the ground of the natural and inherent inferiority of the Negroes. Human rights were largely denied them. It regarded them not as men who had rights which other men were bound to respect, but as chattels to be used and used up; to be bought and sold as other property. In various court decisions this is brought out with great clearness. In 1834, a chief justice of Maryland said: "In Maryland the issue (of female slaves) is considered not an accessory, but as part of the use, like that of other female animals. Suppose a brood mare be hired for five years, the foals belong to him who has a part of the use of the dam. The slave in Maryland in this respect is placed on no higher or different ground." Another judge declared, "A slave cannot contract matrimony, the association which takes place among slaves and is called marriage being properly designated by the word contubernism, a relation which has no sanctity and to which no civil rights are attached." These quotations, which might be indefinitely extended, show that slavery regarded the Negro as without personal rights.

This same assumption of the Negro's inferiority underlay the master's attitude toward his intellectual development. He was devoid of ordinary human susceptibilities and ambitions. As a specimen of this repressive legislation, an extract from the code of South Carolina will serve: "If any person shall hereafter (1834) teach any slave to read or write, such person, if a free white person, shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars for each offense and imprisonment not less than six months; or if a free person of color, shall be whipped not exceeding fifty lashes and fined not exceeding fifty dollars; and if a slave, to be whipped at the discretion of the court not exceeding fifty lashes, the informer to be entitled to one-half the fine and to be a competent witness."

The State, represented by Calhoun, who scoffed at the Negro's ability to learn, forbade by law and extreme penalties the performance of the impossible! Well may the Commissioner of Education add, with grim humor, "Why re-enact the laws of God?" Why, indeed! Because the institution of slavery must rest upon ignorance. It was doomed if the slave began to think, and hence every effort must be made to crush out all intellectual aspiration.

A half century of freedom has established beyond controversy the capacity of the Negro to acquire learning. Like many another theory which has failed in the presence of facts, that of the Negro's incapacity to learn has been confuted by the intellectual attainments of the race. The antebellum claims seem absurd in the presence of Negroes of ripe culture—the products of fifty years of opportunity.

Those who deny the capacity of the Negro for higher education are obliged to answer the argument of actual achievement. There arise to confound them scores of Negroes who have completed the curricula and hold the diplomas of our highest and best-accredited institutions of learning. They have done this in a fair field, asking and receiving no favors on account of their color. Among the hundreds of university-trained Negroes are graduates of Wesleyan, Boston, Yale, Harvard, Chicago, and other universities which are jealous of their prestige. These men are distinguished in the various learned professions and in other honorable and useful pursuits. They prove the possibilities of the race. It is not claimed nor should it be expected that a race only fifty years from slavery should show an average of scholarship equal to that of a race which has enjoyed fifteen centuries of Christian civilization, with its opportunities for culture.

But these educated men prove the right of the Negro to the highest educational privileges. He is entitled to a chance to make the most of himself. He is not to be dealt with as an exceptional being, but as a man. By virtue of his manhood he should be limited only by his own capabilities. That he must have a peculiar kind of education is absurd. Industrial education is no more a panacea for his troubles than it would be for those of any other people. Industrial education is efficient but is not sufficient. The Negro race needs leaders of its own blood, and these, in order that they may lead wisely, must be thoroughly trained. The true method of dealing with this people is to provide good elementary education with industrial features for the many; secondary education, especially good normal courses, for those who can go further, and the higher education, as a possibility and incitement, for the few specially qualified for it. University-trained men and women are needed as leaders for the race, and the more highly educated they are, the more symmetrical their culture, the nobler their character, the better it will be for the Negro himself and for his white neighbor.

OUR SCHOOLS

OUR schools in our great system of Christian institutions are now in the full devotion of their first part of the school year's work. We believe that our readers wish to know about them. Our teachers cannot tell you all, but they can tell you what they have written. We ask you to read what they have written and we are sure you will be interested to give these earnest missionary workers your helpful sympathy.

LIVELY MOMENTS AT EMERSON INSTITUTE, MOBILE, ALA.

By Wm. Barnard Smith, A.M., Principal

The American Missionary Association began its school work in Mobile, Alabama, in 1866. When in 1867 there was an opportunity to purchase property for a permanent work, Mr. Ralph Emerson of Rockford, Illinois, furnished the money. That was forty-six years ago. It was a great and timely benefaction for a locality especially needy. Since that time the school has had its trying years and its years of great reward. It has been through incendiary fires and changing principals have been through it. Yet it has never failed to shine as a light in a dark place.

In the last twenty-five years Emerson school has made very notable progress, and its records show that it has been continually achieving the purpose of its founders. The continuing interest and beneficence of Mr. Emerson has made this possible. A commodious school building with ample rooms for all the school departments is due to him and he had from the beginning followed the school with large helpfulness. Looking to the education of teachers and Christian leaders in the Negro community, it has sent out many thousands to leaven the life of their people. We are sure that Mr. Emerson must rejoice in the great accomplishment of the school which bears his name.

YOU ask for a "lively article" about Emerson. One of the liveliest functions in the school life is that of the noon recess period. For let it be known that, as far as the Principal has found out, this school has the finest playground and the best playground apparatus to be seen in connection with any city school for Negroes in America.

The grounds of Emerson Institute cover four acres and occupy the interior of four city blocks, situated three-quarters of a mile from the Mobile river and the business center of the city, and two blocks from the finest residence avenue. The school is surrounded on four sides, except for a hundred feet front on Scott Street, by a shell of houses which are owned or rented by both white and colored families. About half of this interior space is used for play.

Watch the children, both boys and girls, as they circle on the giant swings, the most popular of all the apparatus on the grounds. They were made and erected by the boys and the instructor in the Manual Training department. Others are enjoying the swings, short ones for the little children and longer ones for the others. A line of boys is climbing the long ladder which leads to the top of the slide seen in the picture, down which, one after the other, they will soon be speeding to the ground. Beside and beneath are hanging rings and a horizontal bar. These the boys do not care so much for and perhaps it is as well, since they are somewhat dangerous.

On the boys' ball field a game is in progress, while the girls, on their own ground, are playing basket ball. Fine ball players are these boys of the south land, where the game can be played for ten months in the year. Foot ball we have never introduced, though it is played at other schools in the city. In their own games the girls are nearly as fleet of foot and skilful in throwing and catching as their brothers. We would like to introduce some pretty folk dances in place of their more boisterous games if there were someone to give instruction.

Perhaps another set of boys is playing "leap-frog"; indeed this is the most popular game at present, and how these boys can jump! They seem to have springs in their shoes. The smaller boys are playing marbles, in ways that the Principal knew not of in his boyhood days. The little girls are playing hide-and-go-seek, and many good hiding places the big live oak trees and the oddly constructed industrial building on its exterior afford.

Children who have not yet finished their lunches are seated here and there on the steps of buildings or on the ground, if the day is warm and pleasant. Most of the children bring their lunches, but others are allowed to go to a store on the next corner where pies and cakes and fruit can be bought. We have not yet tried the plan of having hot food provided in the Cooking department; though last year several of the girls were allowed to sell nickel lunches on their own account in order to get money for paying tuition.

During the time of relaxation and merry-making, other more serious occupations are elsewhere going on. In the Bookkeeping room a class in Bookkeeping is being held, for which no other time could be arranged with the instructor, who is a stenographer and business secretary from the city, giving two hours each day to our classes in stenography, typewriting and bookkeeping.

In the Music Room the teacher may be trying voices for the school chorus, while in the school gardens girls of the agricultural classes may be weeding their lettuce, onion and turnip beds. The work of gardening we find to be very attractive to city children, and they are often inclined to use their play spells for doing it. Upstairs in the High School Study Hall, alas! tardy pupils or those otherwise irregular in conduct are suffering the penalty, keenly felt, of being deprived of a part of the play hour. One-half of the teachers are at lunch while the rest, in their turn, oversee the playgrounds.

All this may seem to be a comparatively unimportant aspect of school life, but, if modern theories of pedagogy be true, these pupils whom we have seen are being educated while they play. The voice of authority is seldom heard and the child's native instincts are allowed free development, under sympathetic supervision, as they never can be developed in the school room. Tuberculosis, too, the arch enemy of the bodies of the colored race, is being warded off by draughts of fresh air in the big school room of out-of-doors.

It is a matter of great injustice that Negro children are debarred from the use and enjoyment of the few playgrounds in Southern cities. A new playground with attractive playground fixtures was recently opened only a block from our school and directly opposite one of the largest Negro churches, but no Negro child may play or walk thereon. We therefore throw our playground, which is the finest in the city, open to children in the afternoon until five o'clock, and during the summer months, while there is someone here to supervise, the grounds are open several hours in the day. Children without playgrounds are driven to the streets, and in the streets, saloon-lined, dusty and narrow, disease and moral pestilence await.

None the less life-giving, if less showily "lively", is the daily round of work and preparation which goes on in chapel, study hall, recitation rooms, library, and manual training buildings. Emerson is most fortunate in having well equipped laboratories, possibly the best among our A. M. A. schools, for demonstration and individual experiment in chemistry, physics and biology. There is a well-trained specialist in charge of the Science department, so that Emerson is enabled to do more laboratory work than is prescribed by our "Manual for High Schools." Last year our students in Practical Electricity wired the Boys' Manual Training Building and connected six of the buildings upon the grounds with telephones, besides doing other wiring and repairing.

Emerson expects soon to have a new library of seven hundred volumes, which is to be one of the latest gifts of our generous friend, Mr. Emerson. This will be placed in the old Rockford Hall Normal Room, which will also serve as a spacious reading room.

There have been many improvements made in the Emerson plant since the last article in regard to the school was published in any missionary paper, which have all been made possible by gifts from Mr. Emerson, our benefactor from the first until now. Three years ago a new High School Building was erected by the aid also of gifts from citizens of Mobile and others. The same year the Boys' Carpentry Shop and Blacksmith Shop were generously equipped with gasoline engine, woodworking machinery, forges, etc. The following year the teachers' home was remodeled, two wings being added for Principal's quarters and dining room. A cottage for colored teachers was also built and furnaces were placed in the main school building and in the Teachers' Home. We expect during the coming Christmas vacation to move the Girls' Industrial Building to a more favorable location and install a furnace for heating.

Next June there will be graduated, it is expected, the largest class save one, in which were the same number of students, which has ever gone out from here. It is also one of the best. All the members are professing Christians and an unusual proportion of the class are looking forward to taking collegiate work.

DORCHESTER ACADEMY, LIBERTY COUNTY, GA.

An hour's ride from Savannah on the direct route to Florida brings us to McIntosh, Ga. This is little more than a hamlet, but it can provide a "buggy" that will take us through the low-lying rice land for seventy-five cents. It is an attractive ride through the swamp land with the trees festooned by the live, hanging moss. Dorchester Academy is located on a slight rise of ground and is the principal evidence of civilization in a scarcely visible hamlet significantly called Thebes. Professor J. F. de Castro, who begins his first year here as Principal, tells us what he has found. The half dozen buildings large enough to care for 300 pupils—scattered miles apart through this region—have evoluted from a single small house in 1871 with one teacher. The fruitage of 30 years has been wonderful; thousands have been rescued from ignorance and "saved."

A HEAVY white frost over everything and the chill midwinter in the air, and yet the roses and japonicas in the full bloom of their red and white beauty, and all the tender green things growing so bravely in the gardens. This is the 28th of December.

So it is with the people here. The frosts and chill of adversity, privation, want, sickness and suffering upon them and around them, and yet the full bloom of faith, hope, and ambition filling their hearts and cheering their souls. Such perfect faith in the goodness of God; such endless hope for the better and higher things to come; such unconquerable ambition to realize through their children the lifting of the whole race to a higher plane. For illustration:

Deacon Powell and his wife are very old and very good. They live all alone in their little house very much open to all kinds of weather. They had a few good hens which were their main support and dependence. One night last week when it was very dark and very cold and the rain was falling, they heard a great commotion among the chickens, and thinking that it was a fox the Deacon went to the door and called out loudly and clapped his hands to scare the rascal away.

The next morning the Deacon discovered that all their hens had been stolen by some miserable tramps who go prowling through here quite frequently. Then these two good souls folded their hands and with tears in their eyes said, "It is God's will," and thanked him for His mercy and goodness.

A few days ago I was talking with a prosperous merchant in a thriving village not many miles from here, and he remarked that the many acres of flats and marshes stretching out widely on each side of the Ogeechee River, and now overgrown and rank with weeds, were once covered each year with splendid fields of rice. I asked him why they had been abandoned. Very bitterly he replied, "The nigger will not work in the rice fields, he is too lazy. All he wants is to get education and sit in the shade."

Well, I do not believe there is any good reason why the Negro should be the one to stand all day in the swamp to his waist in water, subjecting himself to the bites and stings of insects, the glare and heat of the sun, and the danger and ravages of fevers if he can do better, nor yet why he should not get education and, like other people, sometimes sit in the shade.

Ophelia and Mary Maxwell are two bright girls in the High School here. They come each day from their home more than eight miles away. They have not been absent nor late since school began twelve weeks ago. Besides this daily walk of nearly seventeen miles in all kinds of weather and a six-hour school day of work in many subjects and branches, difficult to them, and helping with the work at home, they must certainly study their many lessons faithfully, for they are always prepared. Best of all, their manners and behavior are perfect. Their little sister in the fourth grade does nearly as well.

These cases cited of the Deacon and his wife and the Maxwell girls are not special, but general, and are illustrative of the type of people throughout the school and the community. There are many good old folks here living lonely lives and just managing to exist, and yet willing to do most anything they can to earn an honest penny. There are several widowed mothers wearing themselves out trying to keep their little flocks together and give them some "schooling." Most of the children come long distances to school, some even further than the Maxwells. For lunch they bring a piece of sugar cane or a sweet potato. Some do not have anything else all day.

I have not found them "lazy," but I have found them hard-working and industrious. What little they may have is husbanded with great care. There is positively no waste, everything is put to the utmost use. Their homes, though open to the weather and almost bare, are kept perfectly clean, tidy and neat. Their clothes, though scant and worn, are clean and well patched and mended. Many of the children have never worn stockings and shoes. From the smallest to the largest, from the youngest to the oldest, they are continually busy.

It is now more than three months since we came here, but I have yet to hear the first bad word of any description from any of these people, neither have I seen any evidence of the use of tobacco or liquor or any quarreling or fighting among them.

Their absolute faith in God and His goodness is magnificent. Their hope for better things is pathetic. Their ambition is very wonderful; and their struggles and patient endurance, enlist the admiration and sympathy and stir the very hearts and souls of those who witness how seemingly futile are their efforts, and yet with what splendid courage they keep up the fight.

These people not only need help, but if anything was ever merited or deserved, they deserve most truly to be helped. If it were only possible to divert just a tiny stream, even the merest trickle from the great tide of prosperity and plenty which is sweeping over the land, within their reach, the immense good that would be done could never be measured.

It does one's heart good, and it is truly pleasant to see how pitiably grateful these people are, all of them, for the smallest kindness done for any one of them, proving that they have learned the great lesson of unselfishness in their great aim and ambition to raise and better the condition of the whole race.

SCHOOL BUILDING

Here is a great work. God's work among God's people in God's country. It is a wonderful field. A little seed sown, a little work done, and then what a glorious harvest. The sowers shall be the reapers. And oh, the joy of the harvest when they shall hear the Master's voice say, "Well done." Come then to the planting and the sowing; come while it is yet day; come that we may all be at the reaping and rejoicing.

THE DISEASE OF LAWLESSNESS

By Kelly Miller

GOV. BLEASE, of South Carolina, has been condemned in every mood and tense for his phrase, "To hell with the Constitution." Yet the intrepid Governor is but the unabashed mouthpiece of a far-reaching and widespread sentiment. The nation does well, in a spasm of virtue evoked by this fiery utterance, to aver and avow anew its devotion to ordained law and order; but the vehement outbreak of the Carolinian is but an eruptive symptom of a systematic evil. America is conceded to be the most lawless country of civilized pretensions on the face of the globe. The spirit of lawlessness vents itself in various forms. Political graft, bribery, corporate rapacity, municipal corruption, murder, riot, lynching, and mob violence are but outward symptoms of the inner spirit. It is not sufficient to hold up hands in horrified innocence, and appease the conscience by a casual denunciation of Gov. Blease. The Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution are overridden with impunity. There is not a fourteen-year-old male citizen in the United States who does not know this to be the case. If one part of this revered instrument can be set aside at pleasure, why not all of it? If there is to be any saving reverence for the Constitution, it must be for the document as a whole. If parts are to be selected to be enforced and parts to be ignored, in accordance with the demands of local or temporary situations, what becomes of its binding sanction? The excuse which Gov. Blease pleads in extenuation of lawlessness is as old as crime. Men are ever prone to seek sacred sanction for human deviltry. That heinous crime should meet with condign punishment, is agreed to by all right-minded men. But experience shows conclusively that deviation from the law for one crime, however heinous, will lead to deviation for other offenses, however trivial. Nor has it ever appeared that mob violence is a more effective deterrent to crime of any description than orderly enforcement of law.

Lawlessness is without question the greatest evil now gnawing at the vitals of the nation. The question is not political, or local, or racial, but is nation-wide. By calling this evil to the attention of the nation, Gov. Blease may prove to be the negative cause of a positive cure. The offense must needs come, albeit the one through whom it cometh must suffer the odium of popular disesteem. But the national conscience, temporarily quickened by a frenzied outcry, cannot allow itself to lapse into acquiescent composure while the fundamental law is defied; for if our Constitution can be so easily remanded "to hell," our whole social fabric must speedily go the same way.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"The Missionary Review of the World" for January is an issue of exceptional interest and value. It contains the most complete and up-to-date tables in existence, with statistics of all the Protestant Foreign Missionary Societies of the world. One sees at a glance what are the different missionary societies in all Christendom,—Canada, United States, Great Britain, The Continent of Europe, Africa, Asia and Austria, and so far as figures can show the extent of their work as well as the lands in which their missions are located. It shows 71 different Foreign Mission Societies in the United States, and 6 in Canada, expending the last year a little less than $15,000,000, and covering many parts of the world. Great Britain has 55 Foreign Missionary Societies and expended last year about $8,500,000.

"The Missionary Herald" leaves little to be desired for those of us who follow closely the intensely interesting missions of the American Board. It is excellently edited, and justly appeals to all constituents of the Board.

"The Missionary Review of the World" holds a unique place among Missionary periodicals in its vision of the wide, wide world. It is edited with superior ability and its articles and its presentation of facts make it a great Missionary Magazine. It is published by the Funk & Wagnalls Company, New York.

Mrs. Ella Sheppard Moore, one of the original Jubilee Singers of Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn., has been teaching the pupils of the Joseph K. Brick School in Enfield, North Carolina, songs of old slavery days. She is giving to them a greater understanding of the slave music, its origin and its beauty, and inspiring in them a genuine appreciation and love for the songs which sustained and cheered their ancestors while they were in the house of bondage. Mrs. Moore has formed a club of the teachers and pupils which has given under her direction Jubilee concerts in many of the churches in the vicinity of the school. In her letter to us she speaks highly of this "splendid school, which is now overflowing with students. I am greatly impressed with this work and its corps of teachers. The Principal certainly has been greatly blessed in that he can see the hard work which has been put into this school producing lasting results. The colored people show their appreciation of it in many ways, and the whole community is being up-raised by the gracious influences of the school."

A TALLADEGA COLLEGE WOMAN GRADUATE IN THE REAL ESTATE BUSINESS

Mrs. Janette Isbell Wilson, who was graduated in 1878, writes from Fort Worth, Texas—

I was a teacher for twenty-one years. Owing to the fact that my family duties interfered, I retired. I was successful, as is generally the way with most of Talladega College students. During all these years since 1878 I have had good, honorable employment. I owe it all to Talladega. I have never ceased to tell people everywhere about my Alma Mater.

Now as to my work. We are building nine Negro towns or cities in Oklahoma. The land is cheap. Great numbers are going there every day. I have had the honor of helping 278 persons to purchase homes on the installment plan, who now have deeds and abstracts of title and are living there. Some have beautiful homes. We handle some of the richest farm lands in Oklahoma. It has afforded me good employment for six years. My work has been a satisfaction to all concerned.

Such instruction as the young men and women are given at Talladega College, if wisely heeded and digested, will fit them for the walks of life. I am ever on the watch. Every good we let enter our hearts is shown in our lives. I am trying to live a devoted Christian life and do all the good I can in all the ways I can.

THE A. M. A. TREASURY

H. W. Hubbard, Treasurer

Many of the churches made a heroic rally in December and some of the churches collected more than their apportionment. We would like to mention some of them but they have their satisfaction and reward. It is encouraging to have the churches rally at the close of the calendar year. The collections received in January to be credited in Year Book as for 1912 indicate an increase over last year.

We print comparative statement of receipts from churches, individuals and legacies for December and for the quarter of our fiscal year ending December 31st.

February is the month designated for special study of the mission fields of the Association and the gathering of collections from the Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies—Lincoln Memorial Sunday February 9th and Jubilee Emancipation rallies are special features,

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH BUILDING SOCIETY

Office: 287 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Corresponding Secretary, Charles H. Richards, D.D.; Treasurer, Charles E. Hope. Field Secretaries, William W. Newell, D.D., 19 S. La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill.; New England office, Room 611, Congregational House, Boston, Mass.; Rev. H. H. Wikoff, Mechanics Bank Building, San Francisco, Cal.; Assistant Field Secretaries, Mrs. C. H. Taintor, Clinton, Conn., and Rev. J. P. Sanderson, D.D., Chicago.

WHAT ABOUT LAST YEAR?

THE sixtieth year of the Society, which has just closed, is the banner year in its history. Its receipts have been larger than ever before, and there has been a gain in nearly every feature of its work. The increase of thirty-three in the number of contributing churches is something to be thankful for, although we wish the number could have been multiplied by ten. We are glad that 3,091 churches had a share in this work in 1912. For the first time in the history of the Society our receipts passed the $300,000 mark, bringing into the treasury a total of $304,805. We no longer include "specials" or money given directly to churches by interested Congregational friends, and protected by our mortgages to the denomination, as receipts of the Society, as was formerly done. We list them in a class by themselves. If they had been included as before, the $26,816 of these "specials" would have carried the reported receipts up to $331,621. Nearly every source of income shows a gain, so that we exceed the receipts of the preceding year by nearly $35,000. The contributions of churches stand at about the same figure as the preceding year, but there is a shrinkage in the repaid installments of church loans. This is due to excessively hard times in certain sections of the Northwest, crippling some of our churches. On the other hand, we find a slowly increasing number of churches undertaking to reach the full apportionment mark in their gifts. When all of our 6,000 churches take hold of this cause as their own work, and plan to do their full share as suggested by the Apportionment Commission, we shall doubtless be able to add to our grant fund the balance of the $170,000 which the Commission declares is what we ought to have from the churches and their affiliated societies each year.

We have had the joy of assisting more churches than usual in the completion of their houses of worship and parsonages. In 1912 we paid last bills on 148 buildings for church purposes. We helped to build 108 churches, more than two a week, and 40 parsonages, one every nine days. This means nine more churches and eleven more parsonages than in the preceding year.

The Sixth Decade.

We are glad to report, also, that the sixth decade of this Society has surpassed all its predecessors not only in receipts but in the aid given for church and parsonage building. The receipts from all sources in the ten years ending with 1912, exceed those of the previous decade (although the large Stickney legacy came to the Society in that period) by $659,672. They exceed the total amount gathered in the first four decades combined, including the Albany and Forefathers' funds, by more than $300,000. We have thus been enabled, during the ten years just closed, to help build 1,365 churches and parsonages, of which 992 have been houses of worship.

It is interesting to note the steady growth of this work. The gathering of the "Albany Fund" preceded the organization of this Society. The raising of the "Forefathers' Fund" was the immediate result of the Boston Council in 1865. Both of these Funds were disbursed thro' this young society then called the "American Congregational Union," but they were aside from its ordinary work and have been considered by themselves, tho' they are included in our grand total. Together they amounted to a little more than $74,000. Leaving them out of the account for the present, we find the record of the six decades of our history to be as follows:

RECEIPTS.

1st Decade	.....	$ 60,564.87
2nd "	.....	492,193.71
3rd "	.....	477,192.11
4th "	.....	1,274,554.86
5th "	.....	2,019,055.49
6th "	.....	2,678,727.95

The total amount for the sixty years is more than seven million dollars.

It will be observed that the beginnings were very small and feeble. The third year of the Society's life the contributions to its work were only $560. The next year less than three score churches gave anything to this cause. The Society was four years old before it got funds enough to make the first grant from its own treasury. Then in 1857 it gave $500, in addition to $300 from the "Albany Fund," to pay last bills on the little brick house of worship in Omaha, which Reuben Gaylord had led his people to erect on the western bank of the Missouri river. That hamlet has grown to be a city of more than 125,000 people to-day; and that little meeting house has expanded into a fine modern plant which with its lot is valued at $100,000. It is an interesting fact also, that the little struggling church thus aided has sent back to our treasury more than $3,500, or more than four times as much as it received, and it has been the mother church of a great sisterhood of more than 200 churches in that great State of Nebraska.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, CHARLES CITY, IOWA

From that time the resources and the work gradually increased. For twenty-five years the income averaged less than $50,000 a year. But in 1882, when Dr. L. H. Cobb became Secretary it suddenly leaped up to $100,000, and never again fell below that mark. Since 1899 the annual receipts have never fallen below $200,000; in only three years out of the last twelve have they fallen below $250,000; and in the year just closed we have gone beyond the $300,000 mark.

The causes of this steady growth have been many. The constant push of population into new sections of the country; the springing up of villages and the tremendous growth of cities; the organization of about one hundred and fifty new Congregational churches each year creating an increasing demand for church building aid; the growing prosperity and generosity of the people; the larger sense of fellowship and responsibility in our denomination; the clearer perception of the vital necessity of our work in promoting the Kingdom of God; the "Apportionment Plan"; all these, and other causes, have contributed to the steady development of the work of this Society, and at the close of this sixth decade of its life it is fitting that we should gratefully take note of the advance.

Some Features of Last Year.

The distribution of our work in all parts of our Nation last year is an interesting feature. We have helped to complete

	CHURCHES	PARSONAGES
In New England	9	3
" Middle Atlantic States	6	1
" the South	4	2
" the Interior District	53	23
" the Pacific District	35	10
" Island Possessions	1	1

These one hundred and forty-eight houses of worship and parsonages mean much more than the brick and mortar, the lumber and steel of their construction. They mean comfort and health for home missionaries and their families, equipment for spiritual work, visible evidences of the faith and purpose of Christ's followers, silent yet powerful witnesses to God and immortality.

Some states have drawn more heavily upon our treasury than others. We have reached out the helping hand to twenty-nine states. But naturally the need has been greatest and consequently the aid has been greatest in the younger states, or in states whose rapid development demands help for enlargement to meet new conditions. Thus while we put $4,950 into Maine to help complete four churches and two parsonages, we put $12,005 into North Dakota, to help complete ten churches and seven parsonages. While we put $9,200 into Massachusetts to help finish four churches, we put $16,150 into Illinois to help finish six churches and one parsonage. While with $1,000 we paid last bills on its house of worship to a young church in Vermont, we paid $17,550 on last bills for ten churches and two parsonages in the State of Washington. And while with $8,810 we lifted the burden from three New Jersey churches, with $35,575 we helped to complete fourteen churches and one parsonage in California. Colorado, Montana and South Dakota have been helped to complete six churches each; Idaho and Oklahoma have been enabled to finish two parsonages each.

This acquisition of church property in these completed buildings marks a very substantial and permanent progress in our church life. It means stability and strength and equipment for service. As these churches usually raise more than twice the amount of our appropriation, when more than $250,000 is secured thro' our agency it is safe to estimate that our Congregational family has made an increase in its property last year of three-quarters of a million dollars.

Some Particular Cases.

It is when one gets into touch with particular fields, and feels the stress of difficulty and danger and the greatness of opportunity, which is at once the burden and inspiration of a struggling church, that one realizes the importance and the joy of this work. Church-building in the abstract awakens no thrill; but the concrete examples of need, of consecrated purpose, of heroic endeavor, of splendid self-sacrifice which are brought out in contact with individual churches stir the heart mightily. We are apt to think of the frontier when we first hear of churches battling for their lives and crying out for help. And there is plenty of frontier left to enlist our sympathies. There is a frontier in certain parts of Maine, and among the mountains of Tennessee, in Wyoming and Montana, along the lines of new railroads with the new towns which they develop, and in mining camps. More than two thousand communities were recently discovered by the Neglected Fields Survey where there is no religious service of any kind. These offer frontier opportunities. Many of our little grants of $400 or $500 go to such places, and they save the day.

But a still more important part of our work is in communities which have none of the characteristics of the frontier, but where the need is imperative to make strong the moral and religious forces, if we are to keep the country from drifting downward into atheism and lawless evil. Our work in cities and large towns is of this sort. The eleven thousand dollars we have put into New England during the past year is of this sort. In the South we have made a new appropriation to our brave little church in Portsmouth, Va., equipping it with a parish house with which it may reach the community more fully. We have helped our church in El Paso, Tex., to complete their house of worship, that in that outpost on the border of Mexico, that Pilgrim ideals may be a leavening power in that growing city. We have co-operated with the Home Missionary Society in Houston, Texas, to ensure a strong development at the capital city. We have put our pastor at Gallup, New Mexico, into an excellent parsonage, and the ideal home will be a powerful preacher to reinforce the message from the pulpit.

Turning to the great Northwest, we have helped to put our church at Grand Forks, N. Dak., on a footing of permanency, and it will have a unique influence among the hundreds of young people at the State University. In beautiful Helena, Montana, we came to the help of the wise and energetic young pastor, one of a new Yale band, and the old, inadequate house of worship has been transformed into a beautiful and churchly building where the work is developing with new promise. At Lewiston Orchards, Idaho, we have helped the ingenious minister, who is also an architect, to realize his dream by helping him to finish the church which he planned, which will be a community center for the hundreds of fruit-raisers on that irrigated plateau. At Sheridan, Wyoming, the second largest city in the state, we have helped to complete the finest church building in that part of the country, with an equipment equal to modern needs. In Seattle and fourteen other cities and towns along the Pacific Coast we have helped to complete churches.

Other Aspects of our Work.

Our New England work during the past two years has been supervised from the New York office. With the aid of Field Secretary Wikoff of the Pacific District, Mrs. Taintor, our Assistant Field Secretary, and Miss Finger of Chicago, the story of the work and its needs has been admirably presented to the churches, and we are gratified to find that there has been a substantial gain in the New England receipts. The Boston office has been cared for with great efficiency and success by Miss C. C. Noyes. We are glad to report that the Rev. W. W. Leete, D.D., pastor of our largest church in New Haven, Conn., has accepted the unanimous call of our Board to become our New England Field Secretary, and he will be at the Boston office after March. He brings to us a ripe experience in successful pastorates East and West, a fine culture, and rare gifts of leadership and administrative skill which will find full scope for exercise in this work.

Our Chicago office has been very busy in caring for the interests of nearly 3,000 Congregational churches in the Interior District, a large proportion of which have been aided by this Society. Dr. Newell has continued his unique and most valuable work of assisting churches to rid themselves of crippling, sometimes crushing, debts. The Chicago campaign for this purpose has had the happy result of sweeping away the burden from thirty churches, raising more than $123,000. Incidentally this will bring back to our treasury some thousands of dollars of our loans ahead of time, but it pays off a much larger amount of additional indebtedness incurred by the churches, accumulated during the years. Dr. Sanderson has also rendered admirable service in looking after churches whose life is waning or expired, and in readjusting difficult cases.

Our Pacific District is developing rapidly in its calls for grants and loans, and expects a marked increase in its churches in the next ten years. Mr. Wikoff has with rare persuasive power brought the churches of the Coast up to a high level of giving, averaging better than some other parts of the country.

We lose from active participation in our work one of our most highly valued field representatives, Miss Lydia A. Finger, whose addresses have given a new and vivid conception of the struggles and needs of our young churches to many people East and West. She has gone to a New England parsonage as the pastor's wife, carrying with her the best wishes of all in this Society. We shall still hope to have on occasion the benefit of her inspiring addresses.

THE DAY OF PRAYER FOR COLLEGES AND STUDENTS

IN the olden days, the last Thursday of January was observed as a Day of Prayer for Colleges and it was actually observed.

The writer well remembers that afternoon prayer-meeting held in the vestry of the old church on the green. The room was crowded and the hearts of the people were lifted to God in intercessory prayer for the schools, colleges and seminaries of our land.

The writer also recalls that day as it was observed at Amherst College, with the class prayer-meetings at ten o'clock in the morning and the general gathering of students and professors in the old chapel in the afternoon.

President Stearns presided, and never will we forget those prayers in their comprehensive and tender grasp of the needs of students and schools. They revealed a soul in intimate relations with the Father. Professor Tyler, or else Professor Julius Seelye, preached the sermon.

But that day with its solemn memories has passed away. We have not the time. There is too much to do to gather together to pray in this formal fashion, so we think, and those acquainted with those early days are wondering if there has not been a loss somewhere.

Not so; a change has come which is a distinct advance, for now the whole Christian world is called to devote an entire Sunday to the needs of our students and the sermons and prayers of Christendom are centered upon this one important theme.

The World's Student Christian Federation selected the second Sunday in February as a day of prayer for students, but China and Australasia found that date to be an impracticable one for them.

At a meeting of the International Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations, held in Oxford, England, in 1909, it was decided that the last Sunday in February would be satisfactory to the largest number.

At the meeting of the General Committee in Constantinople in April, 1911, the question was again reviewed and it was decided to keep the Day of Prayer on the fourth Sunday of February, 1913, bringing it on the 23rd of the month, and it is to be hoped that pastors will keep this date in mind when preparing for the Sunday Service.

This will be the Universal Day of Prayer for Colleges. It has been generally adopted in all student movements, and is acceptable to the state universities and those colleges in the United States and Canada which are not directly affiliated with churches.

It is to be sincerely hoped that the various denominations of North America will unitedly observe this day.

THE CONGREGATIONAL SUNDAY-SCHOOL AND PUBLISHING SOCIETY

MISSIONARY AND EXTENSION DEPARTMENT
Office: Congregational House, Boston, Mass.

CLOSE OF THE YEAR

The last year was one of the most important in the history of the Sunday-School Society. Significant changes were made in connection with courses of study and methods of administration. Emphasis has been laid upon strong work, whether on the frontier, where new Sunday-schools are planted, or with our churches, which are looking to the Sunday-School Society for inspiration and help. The plan of dividing the entire country into districts has been worked out, each with a strong leader. Adjustments have been made, by which larger responsibility has been thrown upon State Conferences, at the same time preserving the economy and efficiency of a strong national organization.

PLANS FOR THE NEW YEAR

The Society has adjusted itself, to raise the standard of religious instruction. The adoption of new courses of study, much more carefully prepared than the old, is now an assured fact. It has proved to be as workable on the frontier as in our large cities. Everywhere teachers are seeking to be better equipped. A great movement is on for helping them. For a time the Congregational denomination, which had been a leader in education, was not equipped to do its share. This time is now past.

There has been held this month the Inter-Denominational Sunday-School Council, composed of nearly all the Sunday-School and Publishing Societies of the evangelical denominations of the United States and Canada. The Congregational Society was able to do its part.

CALLS FOR WORK

The deepest regret, in regard to the last year is that the Society was obliged to decline many earnest calls for needed service.

The receipts for December were $263.56 in advance of those of the preceding year. It is too early to know the results for January. Churches and individuals have sent generous gifts, with warm appreciation of the work that is being done.

The new year reveals great opportunities. If the Apportionment is fully reached, the Society will be able to make the coming year even better than the last. The Society year closes February 28th. It is hoped free of debt. Any who have not done their share, or may wish to, may still help to see that it is closed with joy and encouragement.

IS THERE A FRONTIER?

By Rev. W. L. Southerland, Northern Minnesota

I left the train at 4:40 a. m., having taken it at midnight. The stage leaves each Wednesday and Saturday at 8 a. m. Yesterday it broke down and was left in a mudhole, sixteen miles out. We were obliged to wait for the broken axle to be welded, then take the lumber wagon for which the stage was exchanged, ride the sixteen miles, get the stage righted, transfer the load, and continue the journey, nearly twelve miles.

Our driver, a careful, kind-hearted Frenchman, made his passengers as comfortable as possible. My fellow passengers were a French woman with two babies, one a year and a half, the other two months old. Another passenger was a loquacious German, who fortified himself for the hard trip by frequent tastes from a bottle, carried in his pocket. He showed great concern for the poor mother and her babies, who cried from weariness. His emotions overcame him, and he wept profusely. It took two or three tastes from the bottle to comfort him, but at last he was quiet and went to sleep, greatly endangering his life, as we lurched in and out of the mudholes.

Such roads! Mud, water, ice, stumps, stones, corduroy! We were nine hours going twenty-five miles. Long after nightfall we came near the home of my correspondent, whom I found to be a lone woman in a house of one room. She received me very hospitably in her neat little dwelling, with tasty table spread with an appetizing and hearty supper. "The stage is due at four," she said, "You were to go two miles beyond. You cannot find your way in the mud and dark. I have no lantern. There is nothing for you but to sleep in the church." So I went over to the unfinished church building. One end was filled with great piles of lumber. A cot, plenty of blankets and quilts (out of a missionary box, to be given to some homesteader, whose supply is scant) a tired body, and a clear conscience, what could you want more? It was November, but it was broad daylight when I wakened.

I lay looking up into the unfinished roof, with rafters and bands securely braced. I thought of all the toil and sacrifice this building implied. I remembered how this woman, much of the time alone, had nourished this Sunday-school from its start, when she came to "take a claim," in what was then a wilderness. She saw it grow from a handful of children in her 12 x 14 cabin, to an attendance of sometimes more than a hundred, coming from six or seven miles distant. If the weather was good, they could meet in the grove. If it was bad, fewer came, and they could get into her cabin. Sometimes for a wedding or a baptism, they would bring in a minister. The funerals she conducted.

Two years ago the church was begun; the exterior is completed. The interior must wait until next year. Except a Greek Catholic church for a Galician colony, this is the only church within twenty-five miles. Does it pay?

A TIMELY HELPER

By Rev. J. N. Pendleton, Missionary, East Washington and North Idaho.

Though Bliven District has about twenty-five families, they have had no help in religious work, so have grown careless. I held my first service in the little log school house last summer, but was unable to organize a Sunday-school, though I canvassed the whole community. Upon my return late in October, school had begun, and I found a Christian woman as teacher. She was my enthusiastic helper, and largely through her help, the Sunday-school was finally organized.

HELPING A HEROIC VETERAN

By Rev. C. H. Harger, Missionary in Michigan.

"Count your many blessings, see what God hath done"—sang the missionary, and I marveled at his song. The singer was the pastor of our little missionary church, the only one for a long distance, and one of only four pastors in a big, sparsely settled county, nearly as large as a New England state, in Northern Michigan.

This veteran of the cross is sixty-two years old, but is as active as a man of forty. For nine years his wife has been a paralytic. In addition to housekeeping and tenderly caring for his helpless wife, this faithful man of God preaches three times on Sunday, and superintends a Sunday-school. During the week he goes out eight miles in one direction and fifteen in another, and ministers to the settlers on the plains—preaching at each point visited. In fine weather the invalid wife is placed in the buggy behind old "Don," and makes the rounds with her husband. At other times she sits in her chair by the window and waits patiently his return to put her to bed.

For four years now this loyal couple have ministered to the community in which they live, and also to the regions beyond for miles around. It was a great inspiration to visit and help this patient worker, and see what he is accomplishing.

REV. AND MRS. WILLIAM ETHEREDGE, ROSCOMMON, MICH.

ANXIOUS MOTHERS

By Rev. C. M. Daley, Assistant Superintendent, Wyoming.

We have a little country school, immediately at the base of the Big Horn mountains, about ten miles from Dayton, Wyo., cared for by Pastor Hughes of that church. The pastor writes: "I rode over the hills and found a little white schoolhouse. The school teacher and the people are very anxious for a Sabbath-school and preaching services. The schoolhouse is among the hills. When I looked into the faces of the anxious boys and girls, I could not refuse them. At some of the homes where I called, tears stood in the mothers' eyes, when they told me how their children were deprived of religious services. Many of them said they were not used to that way of living."

The school teacher organized the school, and I sent Pilgrim Helps free for their use. Mr. Hughes will preach occasionally for them.

A COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF RECEIPTS

FOR THE TWELVE MONTHS OF 1911 AND 1912

	Churches	Individuals	Affi. Soc.	Interest	Legacies	Totals
1911.....	$15,075.07	$12,933.06	$6,775.78	$ 8,710.65	$ 3,103.36	$ 46,597.92
1912.....	14,712.87	62,136.59	5,913.50	10,981.97	15,400.00	109,144.93
Gain.....	.....	$49,203.53	.....	$2,271.32	$12,296.64	$62,547.01
Loss.....	$362.20	.....	$862.28	.....	.....	.....

The remarkable figures of 1912 require some explanation. They exceed in the totals those of 1911 by $62,547.01. This increase is accounted for by the special gift of $50,000 to the Endowment Fund, conditional gifts to that fund of $6,500, an increase of $12,296.64 from legacies and of $2,271.32 in interest. If we eliminate from individual gifts, the unusual gifts, special and conditional, for both years, we find that the regular receipts from individuals are $1,646.47 less in 1912 than in 1911. The gifts from the churches are $362.20 less and those from affiliated societies $862.28 less—a total falling off from these most vital sources of $2,870.95. But the gains from other sources overcame this loss and enabled the Board to close the year with a small balance in the treasury. The receipts for January to this date (the 18th) have made it possible to send the quarterly payment checks, due January first, without having to borrow a single dollar.

DEATH OF REV. SAMUEL B. FORBES

The Board has learned with regret of the death of Rev. Samuel B. Forbes, for nearly nineteen years its honored and trusted treasurer. Mr. Forbes died at the home of his daughter in Minneapolis, Minnesota, on Friday, January 3, 1913, in his eighty-sixth year. He had retired from the office of treasurer of this Board in October, 1907. His long connection with the Board, his faithful services, his genial and hopeful demeanor, greatly endeared him to all the members of the Board, his co-workers in its service, and the many friends of the cause of Ministerial Relief who came in contact with him through correspondence and gifts.

The Board extends to Mrs. Forbes and the children its affectionate sympathy and shares with them their grief and loss.

Adopted at the annual meeting of the Board, Jan. 15, 1913.

THE CHRISTMAS FUND

The total of the Christmas Fund for 1912 was $1,803.75. In 1911 it was $1,640.90. Thus, our 1912 fund is the largest of any of the eleven years such a fund has been received, by $162.85. It seems to us, as we have read the replies to the Christmas checks, that they never did so much good as this year. They have relieved so many burdens, and brought such substantial help and real Christmas joy to so many dear old people, many of them very feeble and ill, that we can think of no better way to make gifts in the season of the gladdest and most generous festival of all the year.

THE SOCIAL MEETING

The women of —— Congregational Church were fortunate in having for their president a woman who not only herself felt a sense of personal responsibility for every phase of work in which the organization engaged, but who also sought to have each member share the same sense of responsibility. Among other things, she considered occasional informal gatherings valuable, and planned carefully so that these were indeed good times instead of the silent, frigid "social meetings" which many of us can recall with almost a shudder.

At the beginning of the year she appointed a hostess for each social meeting to be held during the year, upon whom depended the pleasure and profit of her particular meeting. She was at liberty to select others to assist her, but she was expected to take the same care and pride in this church affair as if it were to be in her own home for her own invited guests. Naturally, this exercise of individuality brought a greater variety and interest to the meetings. Fortunately, the hostesses found always a resourceful, ready helper in their president. The choice of place of meeting was also left to the hostess, but, if in the church, every effort was made to create an "atmosphere." Table covers on bare tables, a plant or flowers, a few books or pictures, several easy chairs, in short, some change from the every-day arrangement to do away with the "churchy" look and feeling.

Sometimes the members were asked to bring a bit of fancy work, button holes to be worked, or even the family darning. Greetings over, it was remarkable how quiet, cheerful talk began and continued about these familiar occupations. Some one read a story or an article on a topic of general interest; they even listened several times with delight to a sermon by Dr. Abbott or Phillips Brooks. Sometimes each member was requested to bring an item of current news of social, literary, political, or religious character, and in giving it, tell why it interested her especially. This plan proved acceptable to those who had little time for reading, but were interested in what was going on in the world.

Outside friends were frequently invited to these meetings, giving the opportunity of learning what other Christian workers were doing. There was always music, by some talented friend, and a familiar hymn or two. Simple refreshments were daintily served and the expense shared by the various groups. The character of our Social Meetings depends entirely upon who we are and where we are. All our meetings should be social, but it pays to give the necessary time and thought occasionally to make our church home a social center.

TOPIC FOR MARCH, 1913

A Survey of Neglected Fields

Congregational Home Missionary Society

PROGRAM

Prepared by Miss M. L. Woodberry.

Hymns—God of Our Fathers; Hark, the Voice of Jesus.
Scripture—Ezekiel 9:3-4; 11:5-13.
Prayer.
Suggested Topics for Papers or Talks:

1. The Neglected Fields Survey.

   What is it?
   Who made it?
   Where was it?
   What has been revealed?

2. The Congregational Share.

   Our responsibility.
   Our equipment.
   Our workers.
   Our immediate advance.

Material for Program:

Leaflet.—"Consultations upon Western Neglected Fields."
The American Missionary for January, 1912, p. 601; for February, 1912, p. 642; for March, 1912, p. 710; for May, 1912, p. 78; for June, 1912, p. 141.
Annual Report of the C. H. M. S. for 1912.
Our Churches among the Foreign-Born, p. 19.
Review of the Field by States, p. 22-50.
Foreign Departments, p. 51, 53, 55, 57.

The object of this program is to lead the reader's thought and vision up to the situation that confronts the Home Missionary Society, choosing one phase of one of The Neglected Fields Survey Bulletins for the dominant thought and restricting illustrations and statistics to fifteen of the Western States.

One-second Reports Regarding Distribution

California admitted 29,515 aliens, of which 25,587 were immigrants. Fruit lands attract people from Southern Europe. The two largest cities are packing people from the Orient into congested regions where conditions bid fair to outrival those in the East.

Minnesota admitted 18,490 aliens, of which 17,169 were immigrants. Mining and lumbering districts beckon to people from Northern Europe. Scandinavians predominate.

Washington admitted 17,338 aliens, of which 16,040 were immigrants. Every feature of industrial life is on the boom and attracts impartially all races.

Arizona admitted 3,814 aliens, of which 2,651 were immigrants. The largest immigration was from Old Mexico; second in numbers were the Spaniards, who are closely affiliated.

Colorado admitted 5,514 aliens, of which 5,083 were immigrants. Cities are manufacturing in part. Agriculture is rapidly developing under irrigation and dry farming. All races found here.

Kansas admitted 3,909 aliens, of which 3,653 were immigrants. German farmers. Croatians, Slavonians. Largest Croatian city in the country is in this state.

Montana admitted 4,171 aliens, of which 3,861 were immigrants. Dutch and Flemish.

Nebraska admitted 5,351 aliens, of which 4,996 were immigrants. Scandinavians and Germans on the soil in the northwest, while a considerable Hebrew and Italian element is found in the cities.

Oregon admitted 5,187 aliens, of which 4,794 were immigrants. Made up of Greeks, Germans, English, Italians, Scandinavians and Scotch.

Utah admitted 3,281 aliens, of which 3,114 were immigrants. Activity of Mormon propaganda explains the predominance of English and Scandinavians, but does not justify the strong Greek showing.

Idaho admitted 1,852 aliens, of which 1,718 were immigrants. The sheep grazing attracts Spanish shepherds and herders.

Nevada admitted 1,034 aliens, of which 919 were immigrants. Italian and Spanish.

Wyoming admitted 1,523 aliens, of which 1,395 were immigrants. Eighteen out of twenty races of people.

South Dakota admitted 3,454 aliens, of which 3,209 were immigrants. Out of fourteen nationalities represented, the Danes and Creeds number 1,292.

Note.—The word "alien" designates people not residents of the state. The word "immigrant" people who came directly from some foreign country.

Further bulletins will be issued, focussing attention on individual states, and it is hoped that many societies will be interested to follow and study these reports. All material for the program, except the back numbers of The American Missionary, may be secured at the C. H. M. S. office, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York.

The Sunday-school is asked to send its missionary offering for this month to The American Missionary Association.
